

PEONAGE MURDER TRIAL OPENS AT COVINGTON TODAY

State Has Score of Witnesses to Support Murder Story of Negro Farm Boss of John Williams

By Associated Press
Covington, April 4.—The first sworn testimony of alleged peonage conditions on the Jasper county farm of John S. Williams, whom the state contends caused the murder of 11 of his negro farm hands to hide peonage from federal agents, will be made public here during the trial of Williams, starting tomorrow, on a charge of murder of one of the negroes, whom he is alleged to have brought into Newton county and had drowned.

The state has summoned a score of witnesses by whom it expects to support the story of Clyde Manning, negro farm boss, who declared, according to deputies, that he took part in the

LIFE STORY OF JOE SCHULMAN

One of Birmingham's Pioneer and Successful Market Men

Joe Schulman

On September 9, 1889, Joe Schulman, proprietor of the big market on Fourth avenue, was born at Minneapolis, Minn. He attended the public schools until 14 years of age, then had to go to work. He was undecided as to the vocation he should follow when he came to Birmingham a year later, but decided that he would try the dry goods business. So he walked into Goldstein Brothers of Birmingham "a boy in knee pants" and applied for some kind of work. He got the job and started to keep the stock and deliver packages at a salary of $3 per week. He worked here for several years and his salary was increased from time to time until he earned $12 per week. He believed in saving his money and when he had accumulated as much as $500 he bought a small stand at the corner of Seventh avenue and Twenty-fourth street and started in the poultry business.

In 1910 he moved to the old City Hall market and made such a remarkable showing that he had to take larger quarters at 1806 Fourth avenue. His business grew in this location until he was forced to a larger place at 1330 Fourth avenue. Here he won the patronage of some of the best trade in Birmingham and in 1920 he moved to his present location at 1315 Fourth avenue. Joe Schulman owns one of the largest and best markets in the south today. He carries a very large supply of the finest of western meats and has the most modern and sanitary indoor poultry yard with a capacity of 3,000 hens and they are filled to capacity at all times. Mr. Schulman's records show that he sells between 2,000 to 3,000 young hens every week and it is expected with the steady increase in business it will soon double.

There is one feature that has increased Mr. Schulman's business and that is his policy (making every wrong right). "There has never been any customer that has left my door dissatisfied with my knowing it," says Mr. Schulman. "I believe that everyone comes here to buy because I sell the best goods and at the lowest possible prices. I believe they should get value received and as long as my name stands on the door I am going to serve all the public and my friends right." There is a reason why Mr. Schulman has succeeded with such a policy. He means everything in all earnestness and is always on the job looking after everyone's interest. Mr. Schulman is a member of the Masons, Shrine, W. O. W., K. of P., Dokeys, Civic Association, Auto club, Y. M. C. A., and Y. W. C. A. He has always taken much interest in all work for the benefit of the community and has contributed generously to every good cause.

wholesale killing on order of Williams, but Manning himself was expected to be the chief trial of the prosecution. Manning is slated to be tried as soon as the first trial of Williams is completed.

DEFENSE PLANS SECRET
Since his first categorical denial of the charge of peonage and murder on being arrested, Williams has maintained silence, refusing even to see newspaper men in his cell in the Fulton county jail and his attorneys tonight continued to veil their plans in secrecy.

Not even the number of witnesses summoned for the defense was made public, and reports that the defense hoped to spring a "surprise" during the trial brought no comment from the attorneys.

Solicitor General A. M. Brand will be aided during the trial by W. M. Howard, former representative from the Eighth congressional district of Georgia, and Graham Wright, assistant state attorney general, the latter being sent here at the instance of Governor Dorse.

Williams will be defended by Green F. Johnson of Monticello, Ga., who, according to lawyers here, has never had a client hanged in all the 20 odd years he has practiced law. He has defended more than 100 persons charged with killing, including some 50 white men.

W. H. Key of Monticello and Charles C. King of Covington will assist Mr. Johnson.

The court has summoned 100 veniremen for the trial, and it was expected that greater part of the first day would be taken up with the selection of the jury.

Unusual preparations have been made to guard the courtroom during the trial. Sheriff B. L. Johnson having doubled his force of deputies and ordered John B. Hutchison, superior court judge who will preside, giving the sheriff a force of 10 men. Judge Hutchison himself came into the courtroom late today to supervise final arrangements for the trial and, taking note of the reports that crowds of spectators would be on hand, ordered extra chairs placed in the room. He took the position, it was said, that all available space should be provided for spectators, but that after the room had been comfortably filled no more should be admitted.

Williams and Manning are to be brought from Atlanta on an early train according to plans as announced by Sheriff Johnson.

TO CONTINUE PROBE
Atlanta, April 4.—The federal grand jury investigation into alleged peonage conditions in Jasper county will continue as rapidly as possible without regard to the trial of John S. Williams in the state court at Covington, District Attorney Hooper Alexander announced tonight. It had been stated the jury would postpone inquiries until the Williams case had been disposed of.

While the grand jury was examining witnesses to support the government's charge of peonage in Jasper county and other sections of the state, Willard C. Nelson, a Pike county farmer, was being tried for alleged violation of the peonage law.

A jury was selected and several witnesses testified for the prosecution before court adjourned for the day.

Only a few of the 15 witnesses called to testify before the grand jury were heard. Rena Manning, wife of Clyde Manning, the negro farm boss on the Williams plantation, who confessed to aiding in killing 11 negroes under Williams' orders, was the principal witness examined.

PLANS LAID FOR FEDERAL AID IN EXPORT FINANCING

the assistance of the war finance corporation be able to establish a successful export trade.

Secretary Mellon suggested warehouses of cotton and other non-perishable products, on which loans might be obtained from the government, as a means of enabling the producers to continue operations. He said the copper producers had resorted to that plan when they were confronted with no market for their mine output. Money borrowed on the warehouse receipts was being used, he explained, to keep the mines running in the hope that eventually a market would be available for the stored stocks.

Several bankers urged a reduction in cotton acreage until the world consumption catches up with production. This brought from Governor Harding the assertion that there was no actual overproduction, but a decrease in the buying power of the European states into which American commodities formerly went. The job of the cotton exporter and his financial backer, Mr. Harding added, was to recreate the buying power by supplying some credit on sound economic lines.

COMMITTEE PERSONNEL
A committee was appointed to study the local situation and includes: Robert F. Maddox, Atlanta, chairman; D. M. Armstrong, Memphis; Nathan Adams, Dallas; Charles Claiborne, New Orleans; and Richard I. Manning, Columbia, S. C.

Besides those named on the committee, bankers attending the conference today were: Tom O. Smith, Birmingham.

UTILITY TROUBLES TO COVINGTON

Many Companies Not Making Expenses, Weakley Says in Filing Petitions

By FRED H. GORMLEY
Montgomery, Bureau, The Age-Herald
Covington, April 4.—(Special.)—Some of the troubles of public utilities in this period of little income and great outgo were submitted to the public service commission today by John B. Weakley of Birmingham, who is interested in the water plants of several cities of Alabama. Mr. Weakley spent some time before the commission in a statement about the troubles, the many troubles which each of the companies has to give to him each month.

Mr. Weakley said many of the companies are not making expenses. He filed petitions during the day for permission to make such increases in the water rates of Atlanta, Jasper and other cities as would permit at least the payment of expenses. He also requested the commission to employ an engineer at the expense of the companies for the appraisal of the property in order that the higher rates be made and the rates based on this valuation.

Perhaps the most interesting but troublesome situation Mr. Weakley's company faces now is at Onetona, where a petition has already been filed for increases in water rates. Several months ago the city council established certain water rates which the company accepted. Last month it canceled the rates and ordered lower rates to be paid.

Mr. Weakley asked the commission to establish a reasonable rate for this water service, and to do it as soon as possible, as the company is now maintaining any revenue from those who are opposed to the higher rate.

Mr. Weakley also proposed that the commission employ an engineer to make an appraisal of the property at Atlanta and Jasper in order that a basis for the charges may be obtained.

WALTHALL SCORES NEW TRIUMPH IN IBSEN'S "GHOSTS"

Too often when a screen star appears in a spoken drama the effect is disappointing, but this is not true in the case of Henry Walthall, who opened an engagement at the Jefferson theatre last night in "Ghosts." It is not true for the excellent reason that Mr. Walthall was not a screen star when he first won success.

Mr. Walthall and his company gave a notable performance of a play that cannot be adequately presented on the screen. It is the story of a man who has a rare gift for portraying unusual types, and is at his best in a part like that of Oswald, a disquieted father who has a dramatic climax at the end of the story that is tremendously impressive.

Of the many plays that Ibsen wrote "Ghosts" is best known to American audiences because it has been so often presented in this country, perhaps, than any other work of the Norwegian dramatist, although "Hedda Gabler" and "The Lady from the Sea" and several others have been done on the American stage. For acting purposes "Ghosts" is one of Ibsen's greatest dramas.

The fact that Mr. Walthall is a native Alabamian and has endeared himself to the southern people as the Little Colonel in "The Birth of a Nation" makes his present engagement of exceptional interest, and he was received last night in a way that showed appreciation of his past efforts as well as of the graphic portrayal he gave as Oswald.

Mr. Walthall is as good as an actor on the stage as he is before the camera, and when one recalls his screen career, that is saying a great deal. His impersonation of Oswald Alving was wonderfully realistic acting.

The company was very competent to bring out all the dramatic effectiveness of "Ghosts." Elizabeth De Witt as Mrs. Alving had one of the most difficult roles in the play, and gave a moving portrayal of a mother's love.

Arthur Rutledge in appearance and manner was well suited for the character of Pastor Manders, and his impersonation was especially good. William Clifford brought out all the ignoble traits of the cringing, hypocritical Engstrand and Mary Charleson played Regina well.

Mr. Walthall and his company will present "Ghosts" again tonight.

Washington News

By Associated Press

Washington, April 4.—In an effort to hasten an adjustment of wage differences between tug owners on the Atlantic coast and their employees, Secretary of Labor Davis sent telegrams tonight asking them to send five representatives each to confer with him here Wednesday.

Twelve independent packers in St. Louis, 25 members of the packers and sausage manufacturers' associations and one Chicago cold storage company, notified the department of labor that they desired to become parties to the terms of the packers' wage and working conditions agreement concluded last month with the five leading packers in the Chicago district. The notification means, officials said, that 50 independent packers, as well as the five big packers, have been brought into the agreement.

American citizens entering or leaving the United States no longer will be required to obtain passports or permits, but passport control remains in effect in the cases of aliens entering the United States.

Additional land required to beautify the immediate surroundings of the great cemetery of the Argonne, where more than 30,000 American soldiers dead were buried in France, as well as that at Belleau Wood, containing the remains of a number of marine corps dead, will be given to the United States government by France. The war department announced today receipt of a note addressed to Ambassador Wallace in Paris by the French minister of war officially advising him that the French government had decided to assume the expense of the purchase of property necessary for this purpose.

Soviet Russia pledges military support to Turkey in the event the latter is attacked by the allied powers or by Greece, according to a comprehensive summary of the treaty concluded March 16 between the two governments, which was received in official form here today. Turkey, on the other hand, promises to refrain from propaganda among the Mohammedans in the territory under bolshevik control, and each country agrees to forbid the passage of any forces hostile to the other through its territory.

BESTER GRILLED BY LABOR'S ATTORNEY
Agrees That National Agreements Costing Nation 300 Millions Annually

Chicago, April 4.—W. G. Bester, president of the Central railroad of New Jersey, testifying today before the railroad labor board, declared what he termed the "vicious interpretation" of the national agreements made them undesirable and was causing a $300,000,000 annual waste.

Answering questions by Frank P. Walsh, labor counsel, Mr. Bester declared he was one of the first railroad executives to declare that, as the 30-cent dollar increased in purchasing power, both wages and rates should be reduced correspondingly.

Fifteen of the 188 rules of the national labor contracts agreement were in force, in substance on the Central of New Jersey before the war, Mr. Bester said, but he declined to admit that they were good rules for all railroads.

Permeating after cases, Mr. Bester said when pressed by Mr. Walsh to state what rules or principles might be laid down for national application.

Going over the shop agreement rule by Mr. Bester characterized many as "vicious," "absurd" and "unnecessary."

Attempts to develop Mr. Bester's activities on the labor committee on the association of Railway Executives brought little information. Although Mr. Walsh showed that Bester had originally voted for the majority report of the committee to establish national boards of adjustment, Mr. Bester explained that he was not present at the earlier meetings, and that when he took an active part in the meetings he voted for the minority reports which condemned national boards as being equivalent to national agreements.

BEGIN ARGUMENTS IN EXPRESS CASE

District Attorney Takes Cases In Alphabetical Order, Calling Them Alphabet of Crime

By Associated Press
Macon, Ga., April 4.—For three hours and 15 minutes Assistant District Attorney E. Clem Powers addressed the jury in federal court in the trial of 45 persons accused of conspiracy to rob the American Railway Express company of shipments valued at a million dollars. He announced when court adjourned he would conclude his arguments before noon.

Mr. Powers took each defendant in alphabetical order, referring to the case as "an alphabet of crime," just as he did in presenting the testimony to the jury. He declared that the government had proven conspiracy. He said that it would be conspiracy if there were not more than two defendants connected with transactions, and he asserted that the government had established this connection.

There were 84 persons indicted in the case, but the government will ask for the conviction of only 45, the list being reduced from time to time, the last name, J. R. Radney, being stricken from the list today by Judge Beverly D. Evans at the request of the government.

Wallace Miller, former assistant district attorney, will conduct a three-hour argument for the defense when Powers finishes tomorrow.

The defense attorneys permitted to place Conductor Tom Jones and A. A. Johnson on the stand again today to deny statements made by W. A. Hughes, principal witness for the government in regard to alleged shipment of pig iron and automobile tires.

The government placed R. H. May, superintendent of the American Railway Express company on the stand to rebut statements of Ed Knox, negro, who on Saturday told of a sweat box examination in the office of the superintendent, in which the negro charged that a pistol had been held to his head.

Mays denied that there was a gun held at the negro's head. He said that many questions were asked of the negro, but he asserted the negro dictated the statement which was presented to the court as a confession.

Miller's motion to have a verdict of not guilty directed for all defendants was overruled. Motions for the exclusion of evidence which consumed the morning session were overruled. Judge Evans said, however, that he would instruct the jury that some of the testimony is not conspiracy evidence, but only as bearing on the character of the defendants to whom it was related.
